As we told him, it is regretted that we have been unable at this time to take advantage of his services. At the present time, we are only hiring clerical and secretarial replacements as necessary, except on infrequent occasions when there is a specific need for a man with particular attainments in our field of work. However, we are going to keep his application on file, should an assignment become available at a later date. Many thanks again for bringing his name to my attention, and I am sorry that our action at this time cannot be more favorable. Dear Julia:

Thank you for your letter of June 8.

I shall look into the possibility of using your
